Salmonella Risk Assessment

The Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) is the public health agency in the US Department of Agriculture responsible for ensuring the safety of meat, poultry, and egg products. FSIS is developing two separate risk assessment models, in chicken and in turkey. These production-to-consumption risk models will estimate reductions in foodborne illness attributed to chicken and to turkey resulting from control of Salmonella.

Lever for Change: Build A World Of Play Challenge

This opportunity provides a challenge to fund bold ideas that will help build a world where every child has the chance to play and learn. The challenge seeks solutions designed to meaningfully impact the well-being and holistic development of young children (birth-to-six) in a sustainable way. It asks the question: what if the needs of the world’s youngest children, their families, and their communities were a driving force in everything from the way societies design care and education systems, plan health systems, design cities and
